THIRTEEN DAYS OF BRAINWASHING

COMMUNISM MARCHES ON!

Congratulations to Khrushchev and other scheming communists!

You know what you are after and you don't let anything stand in your way. You will lie, turn inside out, retreat or slaughter millions in your progressive bloody march enslaving the world. You are practical. You prefer to take countries over talking peace, but use wholesale murder if necessary.

History will record the 13 days Khrushchev and his 100 communist specialists spent in the U. S. as the greatest victory of slavery versus freedom. If the Bolsheviks had sacrificed 100,000 soldiers in a victorious march into a country, communism could not have strengthened World Communism, as during the 13 days our taxpayers paid for Khrushchev's protection, entertainment and brain washing, done through T.V. into our homes.

So credit to the butcher of the Ukraine and Hungary for the way you forced our wishy-washy politicians to invite you and then eat out of your bloody hands.

Our State department was careful to see that no one offended you. We remember it was our State Department that forced China to accept communism. It was not Stalin who went to China and forced Chiang Kai-shek to take communists into his government and force Chiang out; it was Gen. George Marshall, sent by the State Department, spending 13 months beating down the anti-communist Chinese and setting up communism, using the threat of starvation. It was the same Gen. Marshall, who later, as Secretary of Defense, on Nov. 29, 1950 was the only non-Jew at a $500 plate dinner given by Jews in New York, appointed Anna Rosenberg as Assistant Secretary of Defense in charge of all manpower where she supervised the hiring of a million people in 115 government agencies. She packed the Defense Department with reds, and Senator McCarthy was crucified for trying to get them out. Who promoted the communist, Peress?

We congratulate you Bolsheviks for having so many comrades in key positions here.

Your 13 day sales campaign has strengthened them much. Your 13 day Crusade also strengthened your spies and plotters in the 82 countries you are out to take over.

That was a nice reception Khrushchev as you alighted from your plane at Los Angeles — the Dave Shines Sr. & Jr. were so happy to see you, it was difficult for anyone else to get near you. It reminded us of the big fuss Dave made to get out of the Army and work side by side with Sen. Joe McCarthy. The pictures of your reception in San Francisco looked like old home week with Harry Bridges smiling as you received the huge bouquet of flowers from his wife. When you took the white hat from the head of one of Bridges' stevedores and wore it all day, we could see brotherly love in the eyes of Bridges. When you asked a member of Bridges' Union if you could call him "comrade," we got the idea you were among communists, then we remembered that Bridges while under oath by the Un-American Activities Committee had said he was not a red, we figured we were jumping at conclusions, for a communist would not lie.

It was thoughtful and loyal of you K to run up to Hyde Park and place the wreath on F.D.R.'s grave. Eleanor was happy and she says you remarked you felt it a duty. It sure was, for you Bolsheviks owe the Roosevelt Clan much; they have been pulling for you all along and as you know F.D.R. did more to strengthen communism than any man who ever lived. He saved the Soviet Union in 1933 when it was bankrupt by recognizing it. Maxim Litvinoff (Finkelstein) promised F.D.R., no communist propaganda would be carried on in the U.S. Later he laughed when asked about the tons coming into the U.S.

It was F.D.R. as a front for the Jews, who let you have 11 Billion in Lend Lease supplies. The Germans would have wiped you out at Stalingrad but for those vital supplies, trucks, planes, tanks etc. But you chiselers have not paid a dollar on this after 16 years and now come here to scare us into giving you more credit.

Don't forget Morgenthau, He sent you our money plates to print millions of dollars of our money to pay your soldiers when they swarmed into Germany to loot and rape. With the plates, you know, went 4 plane loads of our secret paper and 3 loads of ink to print the money. This was while the communist Jew Harry Dexter White was the important man under Morgenthau, and F.D.R. was on the throne. You owe Roosevelt a big debt for giving you millions as slaves in Manchuria, East Germany, Poland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Czechoslovakia, Hungary. Then too, if F.D.R. had not succumbed to Churchill and framed us with Pearl Harbor where 3,300 of our boys were killed and our fleet sunk, we could not have gone to open war with Germany and prevented them from finishing you Godless gangsters off.

A wreath is hardly enough recognition; there should be a statue of F.D.R. between Lenin and Stalin in Red Square.

You should be grateful to Ike, too, for he forced millions of Russians escaping from communism back to be slaughtered. The millions under your slavery in seventeen countries, as they see you tame Ike and water down our patriotism, lose their last hope for freedom. When Ike campaigned for the presidency he told our people he would "liberate" the captive people. But then there were many Ukrainian, Polish, Hungarian, German and Slavish votes at stake.

Khrushchev: Don't forget your debt to Ike for ordering our troops to retreat back from Berlin, so West Berlin is now 110 miles behind your communist lines and presents a lighted fuse for World War III. You stand A-1 at the White House, for Ike denied a United States Senator, Joe McCarthy, an invitation, but rolled out the RED CARPET for you. You were at your best on your last day here when the State Department arranged for you to go on TV twice and have access to all networks leading into almost every home in the United States.

It was nice the way you talked about your visit with Ike's grandchildren. Your

THE CELESTIAL CLUB

GHOSTS DISCUSS TODAY'S PROBLEMS.

—By Theseus

A rose-tinted twilight — the brief interlude that softens the sunshine monotony of eternity — filtered through the diamond-paned windows of the great library of the Celestial Club. The ageless oak panels, interspersed with uniform rows of leather-bound books, reflected the twilight glow with pastel luminosity. Here and there intellectual Shades of History, sunk deeply in easy chairs, nodded in contented slumber. Others talked quietly in the alcoves that hooded the great windows, while still others eagerly read the bulletins just received from Earth.

The Shade of Disraeli turned from the windows where it listlessly had been watching pink and purple clouds sketching patterns in the eternal sky.

"Did the bulletins from the Anti-Defamation League of the B'nai B'rith come in?" he inquired, addressing no one in particular.

A Shade at a nearby table nodded affirmatively. "Yes," he replied. "I have just been reading them."

Disraeli, somewhat wearily, sank into a leather chair next to the speaker.

"What now?" he asked.

"Well, about the same old thing," replied the Shade. "The A.D.L. is still ranting about anti-Semitism. It seems that the question of race and color has become an obsession with them."

A second Shade across the table peered sharply over the ancient rims of his spectacles at the former Prime Minister of England.

"You were a Jew, Disraeli," he said. "What is your opinion of the race problem that is so sorely disturbing the Earth people — particularly the Jews?"

"I have often expressed myself on this question," Disraeli replied. "No man will treat with indifference the principle of race. It is the key of history, and why history is so often confused is that it has been written by men who were ignorant of this principle and all the knowledge it involves." (1)

(Refer to reference at end of article.)

"You believe then, that there is material differences in the races of men; that these differences are of consequence?"

Before Disraeli might answer, the Shade of John Ruskin, reclining in an arm chair nearby, broke in: "Race is precisely of as much consequence in man," he said. "as it is in any other animal." (2)

Sir Francis Galton, who had quietly joined the group at the table, nodded approvingly in the direction of the great sociologist and art critic.

"John is right," he declared emphatically. "The instincts and faculties of different men and races differ in a variety of ways almost as profoundly as those of animals in different cages of the zoological gardens." (3)

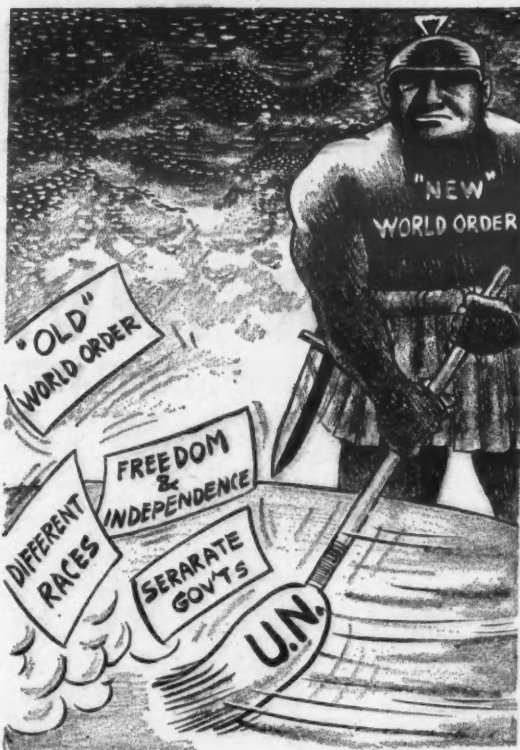

Shades, attracted by the discussion, drew their chairs closer to the tables, or stood in groups around the speakers.

"But," interjected the first Shade. "what about these rabble rousers the A.D.L. is always lambasting? This bulletin declares that anti-Semitic bigots are vigorously opposing mixing Negroes with Whites in schools; that they oppose the marriage of whites and blacks; that they are against world government, and that they are accusing the Jews of conspiring to rule the world."

Napoleon Bonaparte, who had just seated himself at the table, glanced sharply at Disraeli. "The Jews were a cowardly and cruel people," he said in a tone of finality. (4)

"It is much easier to be critical than correct," the former Prime Minister replied with a sarcastic smile. "Ignorance never settles a question." (5)

Charles Lamb, anticipating Bonaparte's

stinging retort, spoke quickly. "I have, in the abstract," he said, "no disrespect for Jews. They are a piece of stubborn antiquity, compared with which Stonehenge is in its nonage. They date beyond the pyramids. But I should not care to be in habits of familiar intercourse with any of that nation." (6)

Thomas Jefferson, who had been listening quietly while appearing to be engrossed in a copy of his writings, glanced at Napoleon. "Their system was deism," he said. "That is, belief of only one God. But their ideas of Him and of His attributes were degrading and injurious." (7)

Disraeli, obviously irritated by the frankness of the speakers, arose from his chair and with his hands locked behind him, addressed the assembled Shades as though he were again before the benches in the House of Commons. "They are an ancient people," he declared proudly, if defiantly. "A famous people, an enduring people, and a people who in the end have generally attained their objects. I hope parliament may endure forever, and sometimes I think it will; but I cannot help remembering the Jews have outlived Assyrian Kings, Egyptian Pharaohs, Roman Caesars, and Arabian Caliphs." (8)

Ralph Waldo Emerson broke the silence that followed Disraeli's outbursts, and although he spoke softly, as though to himself, his voice seemed to carry to the distant corners of the great library. "The ruler of the rulers of the earth," he said. (9)

"And," added William Warburton, once Bishop of Gloucester, "a people long since abandoned of God." (10)

The Shade of Louis D. Brandeis had elbowed its way to Disraeli's side early in the discussion and had followed the debate with scowling intensity. Disraeli had resumed his seat. The former United States Justice placed his hand on the Prime Minister's shoulder as though to silence him. "Jews are a distinct nationality," he declared, directing himself to Emerson and Bishop Warburton. "A distinct nationality of which every Jew, whatever his country, his station or his shade of belief, is necessarily a member." (11)

"And," interposed Disraeli, "there is a great difference between nationality and race. Nationality is the miracle of political independence. Race is the principle of physical analogy." (12)

Thomas Fuller broke the tension by laughing. "A fox should not be of the jury at a goose's trial," he jibed, and most of those around the table joined in his laughter. (13)

"Seriously," said the First Shade, when the merriment had subsided, "it may be a question of sheer prejudice. Is it possible that we are all more guided by prejudice than wisdom?"

No one spoke for several seconds, each Shade apparently weighing the question carefully. The twilight crept across the room sending shimmering sparks from the highly polished metal of the great chandeliers, ricocheting with gentle pastel strokes across the earnest faces of the Shades gathered about the great table.

"Well," declared William Hazlitt, "speaking for myself—without the aid of prejudice and custom, I should not be able to find my way across the room. No wise man can have a contempt for the prejudices of others; and he should even stand in a certain awe of his own, as if they were aged parents and monitors. They may in the end prove wiser than he." (14)

The first Shade turned to Abraham Lincoln, who, though listening with interest to the discussion, sat near the great windows gazing into the eternal space.

"You freed the negroes, Abe. Do you approve of the action of your Supreme Court in integrating the negroes and the whites?"

The Great Emancipator turned slowly from the deepening twilight and faced the company. He sighed a little, stretched his long legs and stroked his beard.

"What I most desire," he replied, "would be the segregation of the white and black races." (15)

Disraeli glanced up quickly at Brandeis, and a murmur of surprise ran around the table.

"But," remonstrated the second Shade, "You freed them! Did you not make them politically and socially our equals?" —

The Civil War President shook his head slowly and an expression of melancholy deepened the wrinkles of his face.

"Free them, and make them politically and socially our equals?"

He seemed to be echoing a question propounded many years before.

"My own feelings will not admit of this," he said slowly. "And if mine would, we well know that those of the great mass of whites will not . . . I protest against the counterfeit logic which concludes that, because I do not want a black woman for a slave I must necessarily want her for a wife. I need not have her for either. I can just leave her alone. In some respects she certainly is not my equal; but in her natural right to eat the bread she earns with her own hands without asking leave of any one else, she is my equal, and the equal of all others." (16)

The Shades fell silent for several seconds. The statement of the Great Emancipator came to most of them as a startling revelation. Many of the American Shades were pondering the consternation Lincoln's words might have on the current members of the Supreme Court of the United States. Thomas Jefferson chuckled a little.

"I said practically the same thing in my 'Autobiography,'" he said. "Here, let me read it to you. 'Nothing is more certainly written in the book of fate, than that these people are to be free; nor is it less certain that the two races, equally free, cannot live in the same government. Nature, habit, opinion have drawn indelible lines of distinction between them . . .'"

Stephen A. Douglas, glancing in Lincoln's direction with something of triumph in his eyes and a grimace about his lips, interrupted Jefferson's reading. "Why I told Abe that a long time ago," he said. "We were having a debate in Ottawa, Illinois, August 21, 1858. Remember Abe? I said: I am opposed to negro citizenship in any and every form. I believe that the government of the United States was made by white men for the benefit of white men and their posterity forever."

"If my memory serves me correctly," observed Shade Number Two, "Mr. Lincoln agreed with you. Isn't that true, Abe?"

Lincoln nodded his head affirmatively. "I had no purpose to introduce political and social equality between the white and black races," he declared, directing himself more particularly to Douglas than the others. "There is a physical difference between the two, which, in my judgment, will probably forever forbid their living together upon the footing of perfect equality; and inasmuch as it becomes a necessity that there must be a difference, I am in favor of the race to which I belong having the superior position." (17)

Benjamin Franklin, who had been glancing through the A.D.L. bulletins, laid them aside. "Some of you may remember," he said quietly, peering at the company over the rims of his spectacles, "that I observed back in 1753 that it was a mistake to plant the sons of Africa in America. In those days we had so fair an opportunity, by excluding all blacks and tawnys, of increasing the lovely white and red. But perhaps I am partial to the complexion of my country, for such kind of partiality is natural to mankind." (18)

"That's all very well and good," said Shade Number Two. "But what about your Declaration of Independence and its flat statement that all men are created equal?"

Jefferson inclined his head in the direction of the Great Emancipator, as though yielding the response to a better authority. Lincoln roused himself as from a reverie.

"I think the authors of the Declaration of Independence intended to include ALL men," he said. "But they did not intend to declare all men equal in all respects." (19)

"How think you, will the problem be solved?" inquired a Shade garbed in the toga of the Senate of ancient Rome and who had but lately been admitted to the distinguished company of the Celestial Club.

No one answered and the company fell silent. Only the steady tick-tock of the Eternal clock at the far end of the great library broke the stillness. The twilight was receding across the polished floor and deep shadows announced the coming of celestial night. Shade Number One leaned back in his arm chair and yawned. "Well," he said, "it's a good thing most of you fellows are not living on Earth today. The A.D.L. would sure have you listed in its bulletins."

WAKE UP, AMERICANS!

By Otto Garr Tague

When Uncle Sam shaved off his chin whiskers and put on the bushy, white beard in order to play Santa Claus to the world, using your and my money to buy the gifts he was to dispense, he may have been a little weak on modern geography . . . He probably did not know that there would be 112 foreign chimneys down which he would have to crawl to contact those people whose hearts were to be made merry by your generosity . . . Many of whom never had heard of Santa Claus.

BRICKS FOR THE NEIGHBOR'S HOUSE

And I'll bet that you never dreamed that there could be 112 nations or political groups that Uncle had to make happy . . . But unless you want to write the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., for such a list, you'll have to take my word for it . . . 112 nations that from 1940 through 1956 received gifts which American taxpayers financed to the extent of $130,350,032,000 or approximately one-half of the assessed value of all the property in the United States!

A list that begins with Afghanistan and ends with Yugoslavia . . . With "aid to international organizations" and "unspecified areas" in Europe, Asia, the Near East, Africa North and Central America and "other," unspecified areas which totals $17,171,511,000 . . . And I nearly forgot to tell you that "Santa Claus" distributed $1,794,160,000 among seven Communist countries . . . Topped by $734 million to Tito . . . With the Soviet Union a close second with $465 million . . . Plus a lot of gifts to socialist nations such as India, Israel, Indonesia.

Since 1940 a total of more than $130 billion given in most part to nations that would not turn their hand over to help the United States in the event of war with the Soviets! . . . Can you, for instance, imagine Albania, already a Communist nation, helping us to lick the Soviets when one hydrogen bomb would just about destroy the entire nation? . . . Yet it received $20,444,000 from "Santa Claus!"

Of course that $130 billion has gone down the drain . . . No use crying over spilled milk . . . But when you figure what even half of that $130 billion would have accomplished if retained at home, don't you wish that Uncle Sam would doff the white whiskers, grow his chin whiskers and let the real Santa Claus resume the job of bringing toys and knickknacks to the children? He could save you a lot of money!

HELP US SECURE

A MILLION READERS

TROUBLEMAKERS

by Mrs. M. Conan

There is grave danger, one that is almost unnoticed, and that is an organization called National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. This drive to stir up trouble between whites and blacks began in 1920, so we read. The Communist Party quick to take advantage of all efforts to promote a movement, no matter what objective of the movement, had penetrated the NAACP to an alarming extent by 1925.

Negroes are made to think they are oppressed and mistreated by the whites. They are taught that communism is the only way out, and should there be a revolution they must fight on the Party's side. Under its communist management, the NAACP demands abolition of all laws which result in segregation of Negroes, and abolition of laws forbidding intermarriage. In other words the NAACP demands complete social and racial equality.

It is said the NAACP may not be considered as subversive, but since its objectives clearly follow the Communist line, and we must realize that the purpose of communism is to destroy America, it is plain that such an organization does not work for our good, and is contrary to our Constitution through giving aid and comfort to the enemy. Therefore, one may be pardoned for asking is such an organization legal?

Under segregation the Negro has made more progress in America than he has in any other country, and we are proud of his achievements. Under segregation there has been a competitive spirit, a friendly rivalry between the white and black races. But now that the incentive has been removed will the negro continue to progress?

Let us recall the wonderful success of Booker T. Washington and George Washington Carver. These two men won the respect of all nations and were honored, with no attention paid to their color. They were humble and meek, not belligerent, thus portraying the truth contained in the Bible, "For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." Luke 14:11.

Naturally, we are for the advancement of all races but we fear the Negroes who follow the precepts of the NAACP are going to find themselves advancing in the wrong direction. It should be the duty of all patriotic Americans to work to enlighten the Negroes as to the true nature of communism, which was founded on lies and deceit and may be called the big lie itself.

kind smile reminded me of Santa Claus, such a harmless old codger. I wonder if Ike was thinking of the millions of children who died and are still dying at your direction?

On that last day before the National Press Club you were wide awake in arranging for the questions. Questions for the speakers are always given to the Chairman of the National Press Club, but you insisted they be given to Andrei Gromyko, who naturally gave you only those you wanted to answer. But we remember how fair and agreeable Gromyko has always been at the U.N. Khrushchev, you don't overlook any bets. At your appearance before the National Press Club, you threatened to walk out when you were asked about Hungary.

You did an efficient job in the Ukraine when you invited all the leaders to gather for peace discussions; then had the communist army surround the building and killed all. When you buried the 9,439 Ukrainians and planted trees over their graves, you should have been more careful! The Germans, you know, found them after they drove your gang out. Under your order six million Ukrainians were slaughtered. You took their farms, metallurgical and coal mines of the Donbass, after killing the men, women and children.

You remember you did not go to school until you were 27 and you were the protege of Lazar Kaganovich, the powerful Jew born in the Ukraine.

Kaganovich was Secretary General of the Communist Party in the Ukraine and you were under him. When the anti-Jewish feeling became too strong, Kaganovich put you in his place, but as the slaughter swept the bread basket of Soviet and resistance threatened, Kaganovich came back in 1947 and took over again as the Party's First Secretary.

At the end of nine months you took over again, as First Secretary in charge of slaughter. Khrushchev, the devil will give you much credit for the slaughter you directed in Hungary and the 47 thousand boys between 12 and 20 you sent to Siberia. Lenin said, "For every communist we have ten others willing and ready to do their work," which reminds us that you have had helpers in maneuvering for two years to get over here and brainwash us.

John Foster Dulles, if he is aware of this shameful meeting of you and Ike, which he tried to prevent, will likely be revolving in his grave.

To sum it up: You were here to break our will to resist. HOWEVER, WE HOPE YOUR VISIT HAS OPENED THE EYES AND INCREASED THE RESISTANCE OF MILLIONS OF AMERICANS.

THE BEASTS OF THE APOCALYPSE

The Most Astonishing Book on the WORLD CONSPIRACY

— Completely Documented and Indexed

AUTHOR

Olivia Marie O'Grady

WORLD GOVERNMENT . . .

In 1949 I became aware of a most despicable plan to destroy the Constitutional form of Government of the United States of America and our God given individual rights . . . a Plan that would eventually enslave the whole world.

Like an Octopus, its Marxist tentacles are reaching far and wide, drawing within its clutches all nations to form a World Government! . . . thereby destroying our homes and families, confiscating our property, doing away with our right of inheritance, demoralizing our nation, replacing traditional education with so-called "progressive" education, abolishing state, county and municipal boundary lines, unifying districts; a plan now being put into force by the so-called Metropolitan Government experts and planners.

Amazing and fantastic as it seems, proponents of World Government and their dupes have tried to put this Plan into action in every community in our Nation. Because of its insidious procedure, it has been able to penetrate into every phase of community life . . . educational, civic, religious and social. If we are to survive as a Free Nation, patriots must be alerted to this sinister menace from within.

"The Beasts of the Apocalypse" was written to facilitate a better understanding of what World Government actually is . . . what the forces are behind it, who directs these forces, and how it is being accomplished.

I am extremely grateful to my family, friends and fellow patriots who have aided me in research, documentation and offered encouragement during the years when ridicule and persecution were so prevalent by opponents of Constitutional Government and proponents of World Government.

I have throughout these years, been totally dependent on God's Grace for enlightenment, and again extremely grateful for this Great Blessing. I pray that this book, "The Beasts of the Apocalypse" may be an instrument to expose this Un-Christian and Un-American Conspiracy in our midst and that the Beasts of the Apocalypse, bent on destruction, will turn their force and efforts instead to doing and promoting God's Will—the Key to Everlasting Peace.

A GREAT BOOK FOR PATRIOTS

While most historians focus attention on military movements and wars as the great events of the past, Olivia Marie O'Grady's Beasts of the Apocalypse traces a fanatical religious concept through two thousand years of history to the present. This commentary never varies from the original idea of world control which was discovered in the archives of ancient civilizations 2500 years ago.

The fervor which the Jewish "Chosen People" have held in carrying out a consistent program toward world domination has had many disastrous results. The tenacity with which they have clung to the idea of universal dominion over all peoples of the earth has led to blood-letting of ghastly proportions of their own kind as well as of the gentile races.

This book recites in meticulous detail events covering twenty centuries that lead directly into the corridors of the United Nations today. Captive monarchs, officialdom of most governments, and military leaders have been the pawns in the fanatical effort to concentrate power in the hands of a few, that it may be possible to control all of mankind.

Whether the hand of control was exercised through the Romans, the Mohammedans, or the Christians, the ultimate goal was always keenly kept in sight. That control was significantly well secured in financial domination of money markets, wherever civil power was sought. Whether wars were won or lost made little difference to the remnant "chosen people." They always triumphed by pitting adversary against adversary, being certain to place their loans so as to be repaid by winner and loser alike.

The darkening shadow of Karl Marx over contemporary civilization is depicted in forceful detail. The strange distortions of reality that were mastered by his coterie of followers is traced in minutest detail into the American body politic.

The strange conversion of an oriental race to accept a conflicting faith and the fearful calamity of its incessant drive to exterminate opposition is the story of the Revolution in Russia. The swarming to American shores of these fanatic revolutionaries is graphically given in the Beasts of the Apocalypse.

If there ever was a doubt as to how control over the socialistic governments of the world is contrived, Olivia Marie O'Grady's Beasts of the Apocalypse clarifies the issue. The contents may be challenged but never refuted.
